By thinking sharper, making and doing with focus, and sharing with confidence our Honours at Whitecliffe isn't about playing it safe or repeating what you already know.

This is your year to push boundaries, to take real risks, and to dig deeper into what matters to you as an artist.

You'll continue to connect your ideas to the world around you - history, politics, culture, the environment - exploring where your voice sits contextually through lively seminars and discussion.

In the studio you'll build and explore, testing materials while pushing limits, and defining your vision and ambition.

Feedback is honest, one-on-one, and every project challenges you.

By the end you'll have more than a body of new art.

You'll have sharper insights, the confidence to speak about your work, and the ability to present your ideas in any context - gallery, publication, or public space.

We're one of Aotearoa New Zealand's most recognised art schools - we thrive on artists finding their place and people - and we believe it is here.

Ready for what's next?

Pick up a prospectus, book a tour, or just call us.

We'll keep you a space in the studio.
